

Rachmaninoff Recital

SERGEI RACHMANINOFF, Russian pianist and composer, whose recent appearance as soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra constituted one of the outstanding events of the current musical season, will appear at Constitution Hall this afternoon at 4 o'clock in full-length recital as one of the attractions of Dorothy Hodgkin Dorsey's Sunday afternoon recital series.

Seven Chopin numbers will constitute the opening group of Rachmaninoff's program. He will play the "Impromptu," Chopin's first "Scherzo," two "Mazurkas," the "Tarentella," "Nocture" and "Fourth Ballade." This group will occupy the interval up to intermission, after which he will play Beethoven's "Sonata Appassionata, Opus 57," and Tausig's version of Von Weber's "Invitation to the Dance." It is expected that Mr. Rachmaninoff will also play a number of encores in addition to his formal program.

Rachmaninoff's recital this afternoon will mark his first full-length performance here in two seasons. He was scheduled to play at Constitution Hall last Winter, but at the last moment a sudden illness forced a cancellation of his Washington concert and his American tour as well.
