

Rachmaninoff's Program Here Tuesday Night

SERGEI RACHMANINOFF

Sergei Rachmaninoff, who will give a recital at the Woodland auditorium Tuesday evening, March 13, under the auspices of the Lexington College of Music Artists Concert Series, has kindled and firmly sustained the interest and applause of American audiences. Wherever and whenever he appears, he plays and conquers. No such impressive figure as Rachmaninoff has surprised the eyes of his hearers in many a day. He plays and they feel the fineness of his touch, the wide range of his understanding and sympathies with music, the artistic devotion within him. He plays, and thru the voice of Rachmaninoff his listeners also hear the glorified voice of the composer.

All the music he has written has established the wealth of his imagination, his unique personality and his hold upon the public on both sides of the Atlantic.

Tickets for the Rachmaninoff concert are now on sale in the Ben Ali theatre lobby, phone 2891 or 639-X. Reservations should be made early.—adv.

The Program

Sonata Appassionata... Beethoven
Allegro assai, Andante con moto, Allegro ma non troppo.
a. Fantasy, b. Ballade, c. Valse,
d. Nocturne, e. Polonaise....
..... Chopin
a. Prelude in C sharp minor,
b. Serenade..... Rachmaninoff
c. Liebesleid.....
..... Kreisler-Rachmaninoff
Fairy Tale..... Medtner
Campanella..... Liszt