

Rachmaninoff Concert.

New Haven has secured Sergei Rachmaninoff, the Russian pianist, for a concert, which he will give at the Shubert theater Monday evening, December 16th. It is nine years since he has been in America, and he returns as an exile from his own country, having suffered the privations of war and revolution. Known equally as a pianist, composer and conductor, Rachmaninoff recently refused to become permanent conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, preferring to give his time to composition. In all of his concerts he has given proof of remarkable technical powers, true virtuoso instinct for the piano.—Adv.
