

Le Figaro, 25.04.1933, p. 7

Downloaded from RetroNews, 2026

Each year, Serge's unique recital is one of the main events of Parisian musical life.

Rachmaninoff is one of the highest figures in contemporary music. He is probably the only one to divide his time equally between a career as a virtuoso and as a composer, and to have achieved such complete fame in both fields. It is, moreover, very difficult to separate the two, so strongly does one feel, in both his performances and his works, an identical desire to exalt music.

It is on Friday, May 5th, that Serge Rachmaninoff will reappear at the Salle Pleyel. He will play that evening to benefit Russian Central Charities, thus uniting the nobility of art with that of the heart.

[Translation: Google]